Adult Islamic Learning Guide

Our adult programme is shaped around your starting point, interests and availability. You can study Quran reading, Islamic studies or a combination. Adults do not need to follow the children's year groups.

Lesson arrangements and price

- Adult one to one tuition is £20 per hour. Frequency and session duration are agreed individually before booking.
- Normal teaching hours are Monday to Friday between 4 pm and 7 pm UK time. Alternatives depend on the learner's and tutor's ability to commit.
- Choose Quran reading only, Islamic studies only, or a mix of both. A separate intensive Hifz arrangement requires its own agreed programme and price.

WE DO NOT OFFER FREE TRIALS. All tuition and assessments must be paid before the booked lesson or agreed monthly payment period begins.

The initial assessment

The initial Islamic assessment is approximately 30 minutes and costs £10, paid in advance. It helps identify your current reading, pronunciation, knowledge and learning priorities. If you enrol, the £10 is credited against your first tuition payment. It remains a separately paid assessment if you do not enrol.

Your learning plan

- Quran and Qaida: begin with letters and reading foundations where needed, or continue from your current level. Ahsan al Qaida is used where appropriate.
- Tajweed: develop pronunciation and apply suitable rules through modelling, supported practice and correction.
- Islamic studies: study selected beliefs, worship, manners, duas and practical topics in line with your needs and the tutor's agreed scope.
- Revision: consolidate earlier learning alongside new material. Targets are flexible and reviewed as your confidence and understanding develop.

A welcoming learning environment

Learners of all faiths and backgrounds are welcome. You can ask questions and discuss gaps in knowledge without embarrassment. There is no guaranteed reading or completion deadline. The tutor confirms when a question falls outside their teaching scope and needs an appropriate specialist.

Resources and learning between lessons

The tutor confirms suitable material, level and edition before you buy anything. Safar Islamic Studies, selected dua and Tajweed resources, and Ahsan al Qaida may be used where appropriate. An Nasihah may be introduced later. You are not expected to buy every listed resource. Families and learners purchase directly from external retailers through the links provided.

Agree a realistic practice routine that fits around work, study, health and other commitments. Tell the tutor if tasks are unclear or unmanageable so the learning plan can be adjusted.

Feedback and support

The tutor provides feedback during lessons and agrees next steps with you. Written progress reports are optional and available if requested. Tell us about accessibility or learning support needs through the approved registration process. We can consider changes to pace, resources and explanations; a formal diagnosis is not normally needed before educational support is considered.

Holidays and changes

Adult lessons can continue or pause during school holidays, summer and Ramadan according to the learner's and tutor's availability. Confirm the agreed teaching dates and payment arrangements before booking. You pay for booked lessons under the applicable cancellation terms; the children's fixed monthly holiday arrangements do not automatically apply.

Ending regular tuition

Give two weeks' written notice to management to end a regular arrangement. Agreed lessons continue during the notice period, subject to closures and applicable policies. Management confirms the leaving date and reconciles the final payment. Statutory cancellation and other consumer rights continue to apply.

Online lessons and privacy

Google Meet is the main platform, with Teams or Zoom used by some tutors. Your tutor confirms the platform and joining link. Use a suitable learning space and reliable audio and internet. Keep links private. Recording requires the appropriate consent; private concerns should be shared through the agreed secure route.
